

FELLOWSHIPS, INTERNSHIPS AND NETWORKING OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH IN THE PEACE A

Idealist.org provides a listing of fellowships in public service, nonprofit and public policy. For more information, visit: <http://www.idealist.org/career/fellowship.html>

Jennings Randolph Program

The Jennings Randolph Program for International Peace awards Senior Fellowships to enable outstanding scholars, policymakers, journalists, and other professionals from around the world to conduct research at the U.S. Institute of Peace in Washington on important issues concerning international conflict and peace. For more information: <http://www.usip.org/fellows/>

New Voices Fellowship

New Voices is a national fellowship program which aims to help small nonprofit organizations bring new talent to their staffs. This two-year fellowship provides full salary support and fringe benefits the first year and 75 percent support the second year for the organizations and their fellows in addition to technical and financial assistance and leadership development opportunities. For more information, visit: <http://newvoices.aed.org/>

Open Society Institute

The Open Society Institute (OSI) initiatives award grants, scholarships, and fellowships on a regular basis throughout the year. Applicants can determine their eligibility and view relevant initiatives and application guidelines. For more information, visit: <http://www.soros.org/grants>

Peace Scholar Dissertation Fellowship

The Peace Scholar Dissertation Fellowship is open to doctoral students who are studying at American universities and are engaged in dissertation research on international peace and conflict management. The fellowship is awarded regardless of citizenship, but applicants must be enrolled at American universities. For more information, please visit: <http://www.usip.org/fellows/scholars.html>

Social Science Research Council Fellowships

Social Science Research Council (SSRC) fellowship and grant programs provide support and professional recognition to innovators within fields, and especially to younger researchers whose work and ideas will have longer-term impact on society and scholarship. These programs often target the spaces between disciplines, where new perspectives emerge and struggle for acceptance, thus ensuring the production of knowledge and expertise on key topics, regions, and social challenges. They promote the diversification of knowledge production, strengthening research by ensuring that it remains open to (and challenged by) a range of perspectives, backgrounds, and nationalities. For more information, visit: <http://www.ssrc.org/fellowships/>

INTERNSHIPS

Americans for Informed Democracy

Americans for Informed Democracy (AID) is calling for applications from globally conscious college students who are interested in a dynamic and fast-paced spring internship that will give them a hands-on introduction to the fields of global education, non-profit management, and youth organizing. This internship program offers students an unparalleled introduction to the diverse professional opportunities within international NGOs. Interns help lead media outreach, grant-writing, partnership development, fundraising, civic education, and long-term strategy development. AID's internship is also unique in involving college students directly in the highest levels of the organization's management, allowing them to play influential roles in shaping the group's agenda. Both full- and part-time internships are available, and although a stipend is not available, it is possible for you to work from your current home base. Interested applicants should send a resume and cover letter that specifies their availability to Sarah Bush, Co-Executive Director, Americans for Informed Democracy, 123 York Street, Suite 10A, New Haven, CT, 06511. Applications may also be submitted electronically to sarah@aidemocracy.org.

American Association for the Advancement of Science

American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) is an international non-profit organization dedicated to advancing science around the world by serving as an educator, leader, spokesperson and professional association. In addition to organizing membership activities, AAAS publishes the journal Science, as well as many scientific newsletters, books and reports, and spearheads programs that raise the bar of understanding for science worldwide. For information on internships and fellowships, visit: <http://www.aaas.org/careercenter/>

Arms Control Association

One very important goal of American Progress is to inspire and educate the next generation of progressive Americans. American Progress offers full and part-time internships each summer and academic semester. For more information, visit:
http://www.americanprogress.org/sit64667\[\(s\)-1.1\(e\)-1f.asp?c=biJRJ8OVF&b=9880-1.1(e)-1f.asp?c=biJRJ8OVF&b=9880)

internship is a great way to learn about the issues FCNL works on and the legislative process. For more information, visit: <http://www.fcnl.org/young/intern.htm>

Henry L. Stimson Center

The Stimson Center offers unique internship opportunities based on the values of education, participation, and hands-on practical knowledge. Based on the Center's commitment to professional development, expectations for interns are high. In return, interns can expect a challenging environment which will prepare them for full time employment in a professional setting. For more information, visit: <http://www.stimson.org/about/?SN=AB2001110511>

Institute for Energy and Environmental Research

The Institute for Energy and Environmental Research (IEER) is a non-profit technical institute dedicated to providing grassroots groups, journalists, educators, students, and policy makers with thoughtful, clear, and sound technical information on environmental, energy, and security issues. IEER's work is focused primarily on the health and environmental effects of nuclear weapons production and testing, nuclear disarmament and related security issues, and sound energy policy. IEER occasionally offers internships tailored to the intern's interests and strengths and to the organization's needs. Examples of intern projects include developing materials for IEER's annual technical training workshop and doing research and possibly writing for technical reports. College/university students with a background in math and science and a strong interest in the subjects IEER works on are welcome to inquire about internship opportunities by emailing ieer@ieer.org. IEER is located in Takoma Park, Maryland, within easy reach of Washington, D.C. and walking distance of public transportation. For more information, visit <http://www.ieer.org>.

Institute for Policy Studies

The Institute for Policy Studies (IPS) is the nation's oldest and largest multi-issue think tank promoting progressive thought. As such, we have a number of "Public Scholars" with whom you can work to undertake challenging research, writing, and advocacy in a wide range of foreign and domestic policy issues. For more information on internships, visit: <http://www.ips-dc.org/projects/internship.htm>

Institute for Science and International Security

The Institute for Science and International Security (ISIS), a Capitol Hill-based non-profit research organization concerned with nuclear arms reduction and non-proliferation, seeks qualified undergraduate and graduate students for full time internships. For more information, visit: <http://www.isis-online.org/about/intern.html>

Managing the Atom

The Managing the Atom (MTA) Project brings together an international group of scholars and government officials to conduct policy-relevant research on issues related to nuclear technology. Housed within Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs of the John F. Kennedy School at Harvard University, MTA addresses a broad array of topics in the nuclear field, from nuclear weapons to the future of nuclear power.

MTA offers the opportunity for select undergraduate and graduate students to become Student Associates. These Student Associates assist the Project with research tasks, attend seminars, and actively participate in events hosted by Managing the Atom. These unpaid internships provide opportunities to meet experts in the security field, attend lectures and seminars, and actively participate in ongoing working groups. Student Associates are also invited to monthly social events, e.g., pizza parties and special lunches. MTA also accepts summer interns. For more information, call (617) 495-4219, email sarah_stanlick@ksg.harvard.edu or visit <http://bcsia.ksg.harvard.edu>

Nuclear Age Peace Foundation

The Nuclear Age Peace Foundation provides internship positions year-round for select college, university, and graduate students to work with staff on current peace and security issues. Interns conduct research, write analysis of issues, work on the website, facilitate discussions, deliver presentations, and gain valuable insights into the nuclear policy field. Sites include Santa Barbara, California and Washington, DC. Interns seeking a paid position or academic credit must complete an application. Given that the internship selection process becomes more competitive every year, the Foundation provides volunteer opportunities as well. For more information, visit: <http://www.wagingpeace.org/menu/about/opportunities/index.htm>

Nuclear Studies Institute at American University

For information on volunteer and internship opportunities with the Nuclear Studies Institute, contact Professor Peter Kuznick at: kuznick@american.edu or (202) 885-2408.

Peace Action

Peace Action interns research and write campaign materials, organize events, develop

Library of Congress and different government agencies. On occasion, interns work with whistleblowers. Sometimes the intern's research culminates in a POGO report. Besides research, interns also write opinion-editorial pieces for media release and assist in the writing and editing of testimony to be delivered at Congressional hearings. Of course, some of an intern's time, usually less than 20%, is spent doing administrative work --- sessions. To apply, please submit a current transcript, a resume, letter of interest, and writing sample (preferably on a topic relevant to security) to Ms. Terrell Austin, 120 Holmes/Hunter Academic Building. For more information, email taustin@uga.edu, call 542-2993 or visit: <http://www.uga.edu/cits/resources/internships.htm>

Student Pugwash USA

As a student organization, Student Pugwash USA encourages young people to examine the ethical, social, and global implications of science and technology, and to make these concerns a leading focus of their academic and professional endeavors. SPUSA offers several unpaid internships. For more information, visit: <http://www.spusa.org/about/internships.html#studentorganizer>

Taxpayers for Common Sense

Politically independent, Taxpayers for Common Sense (TCS) works with members of Congress and the Executive Branch, along with activists of all political philosophies, to cut wasteful government spending and reduce federal subsidies. TCS's dynamic approach bridges the gap between liberals and conservatives to achieve common-sense solutions

Women's Actions for New Directions (WAND) empowers women to act politically to reduce violence and militarism and redirect excessive military resources toward unmet of technology on citizens' everyday lives. For more information, visit:

<http://www.spusa.org>

Students Take Action for New Directions

Students Take Action for New Directions (STAND) empowers young women to act politically: to vote and connect with legislators across the country; to promote peace, equality, and progressive social change. STAND offers a community of active young