

Effects of two related amines, octopamine and tyramine, on the heartbeat of Homarus americanus, the American lobster

Anthony Yanez, Class of 2022

Central pattern generators, or CPGs, are neural circuits that control rhythmic behaviors. These rhythmic behaviors are essential to life—think walking, running, and breathing. All organisms, humans and mollusks included, rely on these behaviors to survive.