

regulations to encourage building affordable housing. However, it is also believed (especially to the older generations). In response, Boyle Heights has imposed new school drives and collaborating with non-profit organizations in Boyle Heights (and the surrounding community). These businesses make efforts to give back to the community. By providing

Many residents have said that the new developments are unaffordable and do not meet the needs of the community.

On the other hand, other developments have received overwhelming support from vendors or supporting political candidates), regardless of developer's race and/or ethnicity. In gentrification when the community perceives they are being attacked (ie. insular attention). Some restaurants have received backlash, and residents protest the developments.

There have been new developments in Boyle Heights that have received support from those who did not have the same opportunities, or do they uplift their community? (ie. education and purchasing power), how do they use their new position? Do they support Mexican and Mexican Americans leave their second-class citizens (through access to the community). Boyle Heights is a neighborhood that is currently undergoing gentrification.